The Game

What you need to know before starting.

Participants can bet with or against the bank. The hand that comes closest to 9 wins.

- The 10 and face cards are worth 0.
- The other number cards have their normal value.
- The Ace is worth 1 point.

One of the participants deals the cards and plays the bank's hand.

Punto Blanco seats 14 players, with the “mini” version having seven or fewer and the “midi” version nine or fewer players.

The Casino gives the participant the option of dealing the cards instead of the croupier.

Midi Version.

As an option, Punto Banco may also be played so that 50% of the wager is paid out if the bank hand wins with 6 points.

All other combinations of hands, whether for the bank (banco) or player (punto), are paid at even-money.

Bets on a tie or égalité may not be more than 10 percent of the table's maximum.

The Game Begins.

The cards are dealt to the player (punto) and the bank (banco). The value of each hand is determined by adding up the points of the cards, but if the total is a double-digit figure then 10 is subtracted and only the last digit (on the right) is taken into account.

The hand that comes closest to or equals 9 points is the winner. In the case of a tie or égalité, the payout is 8-1 on the bets placed.

If the value of the first two cards dealt to either the player or the bank is 8 or 9, the game is over and the other side may not draw a third card.
